CELEBRATED ITALIAN FILM FESTIVAL COMES TO HOLLYWOOD

Inspiring children worldwide, the Giffoni Film Festival arrives April 23rd

Hollywood, California – Uniting children around the world through the power of cinema, the Giffoni Hollywood Film Festival 2007 arrives in Los Angeles this April, featuring four competitive categories of films, focusing on diversity, tolerance, and education. The festival will be based at the Renaissance Hollywood Hotel for the third straight year.

A unique and innovative cinematic experience, Giffoni is the only film festival that uses a jury made up of only children. Bringing an unbiased and fresh viewpoint toward quality and diversity, these children, aged 9 to 17, will select the winners in the four competitive categories: Dare to Dream (35mm features, audiences age 9-11), Reach the Sky (age 12-14), Make it Happen (ages 15-17), and Seeds of Inspiration (shorts only, ages 9-17).

Giving the kids a taste of Hollywood, the festival includes screenings at the world-famous Grauman's Chinese Theatre and the award presentation at the Kodak Theatre, home of the Academy Awards®. The festival runs from April 23rd to 28th, 2007. For more information about the festival, please visit www.giffonihollywood.com or call Festival Coordinator Tracey Arnold at (310) 788-9889 x115.
